

DRUM FROM BURUNDI

For everyone

All the drummers are of Burundian origin, they started their discipline as children in their village in Burundi.

They have different traditional costumes and about fifteen drums with accessories.

The Art of the Tambourinaires is above all a quasi-mystical link which unites an entire country with its sacred drums, the word "ingoma" means both "drum" and "kingdom". Fascinating mixture of formalization and spontaneity close to trance, the rhythmic dazzling that the drums masters of Burundi offer us bursts with natural exuberance, the joy and the will to live of a whole people.

The group can do a two hour parade.

Fixed: A drummer settles in the middle of the semicircle and becomes the leader. He imposes the tempo, the rhythm with his music and his dance.

All the other drummers agree with him in song, dance and percussion.

Each show is therefore different.

The Royal Burundi group masters several dances, songs and percussions

- Abatimbo (the most spectacular with the drums):
- Intore (warriors)
- Akanya Rusizi (fishermen)
- Simba gatore (Shepherds)
- Inanga (guitar), dances, songs and percussions.

The group is accompanied by Burundian dancers who combine the grace of the dances with the force of the drums.
